

Make sure to check out our February faculty spotlight featuring

<https://www.ju.edu/provost/spotlight/2019-february-service-learning-with-gratitude.php> had his co-authored paper "Economic Viability of Light Water Small Modular Nuclear Reactors: General Methodology and Vendor Data" published in Renewable and Sustainable Energy Review, volume 103, April 2019, Pages 248-258 <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.rser.2018.12.041>

, was soprano soloist for Messiah for Hunger Fight, a community fundraising effort by Restoration Church in Arlington which raised $42,000 for food insecure children in Arlington.

Congratulations to on being elected to the Tobacco-Free Jacksonville 2019-2021 Board.

collaborated with Wilma's Little People School to conduct early childhood evaluations supporting the Doctor of Occupational Therapy (OTD) students' experiential learning for their Pediatric Theory and Practice course. We look forward to many more opportunities to leverage the intergenerational dynamics available here at

4(t)-4(er)-2(gLO

States government documents that are essential in supporting teaching and research in many of our academic departments, schools, and programs.

, was recognized by the 2019 China National Arts Fund for his new work for string orchestra, Yangguan Pass (2018). Established and sponsored by Chinese government, CNAF is the largest government arts foundation in China, and exists to promote artistic creation and to support the performance of high-quality masterpieces. Yangguan Pass is one of nine works to receive this year's CNFA funding in the Chamber Music category.

We have three professors from Jacksonville University that will be presenting at the TEACH conference on March 2nd in Jacksonville, Florida.

will be presenting "English Language Learners (ELLs) in Math Classrooms: Best Practices for ELLs".

, will be presenting "Stickier Learning through Assignments and Strategies that require Reflection"

, and , had a book chapter published titled "Differentiating Customer Engagement and Customer Participation in Service Marketing" in the book Boundary Blurred: A Seamless Customer Experience in Virtual and Real Spaces.

A $40,000 grant for the analysis of retail store reset data was given to , had their poster "Standardized Patient Centricity Training" accepted for the 2019 Quality and Safety Education for Nurses International Forum.

, opened a solo exhibition, PLAYNTINGS: works surfaced at Georgia Southern University and it ran from January 14 – February 8th. Her “playntings” are a combination of a play and a painting, with an end-result of her varied and playful approaches to contradiction, opposition, integration and connection.

introduced the “Letter Home” assignment as an alternative to the lab report assignment several years ago. Since then the Letter Home has been adopted by physics educators around the world and it was even featured in a

Two Linda Berry Stein College of Fine Arts theatre productions have been honored by the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival: String, directed by

and Into the Woods, directed by winners were Lauren Polimeno (Marine Science major and Track team—hurdles, high jump, etc.), Elizabeth Pozen (Communication and Speech Disorders major), and Bianca Wong Rodriguez (Marine Science major). The following Honors students were on the program to present their research at FCHC 2019: Jada Glenn (Biology major), Joshua Pruitt (Mechanical Engineering major and Mathematics minor), Mikaela Dalton (Dance major with minor in English), Lacey Mickler (Dance major with minor in Photography), Rachel Chaput (Aviation Management and Flight Operations major), Sarah Buckman (Biology major with minor in English), Courtney Purcell (Mechanical Engineering major with minor in Mathematics), Anna Tripp (Marine Science major with minor in Photography). Also, Dane Cordell (Accounting major and Football team) was elected FCHC Executive Board Student Representative for 4-Year Private Universities. Congratulations to our winners and all students who participated!

Recruitment announcement: The School of Aviation is conducting a research study in partnership with Embry-

The Linda Berry Stein College of Fine Arts opened two new exhibits in the Alexander Brest Gallery, _____ and _____. These will both run from February 7th – _____.